

ABSTRACT

A terminal device for recording broadcast information including means to select a program to be recorded; first and second filter means for discerning program information relative to the program being recorded; and means to record related audio and video data relative to the selected recorded program and the location of that selected program on the recording medium.